

Abstract

The present invention is directed toward a coolant system and method for fabricating a coolant system for actively cooling high performance components utilizing a plurality of feed channels that receive coolant from a manifold through coolant feed 5 tubes and supply coolant to a liner that contains a plurality of coolant channels, each feed channel intersecting and distributing coolant to multiple coolant channels, wherein each coolant channel receives coolant from multiple feed channels.